The Great Antecedent

No one will be able to stand up against you all the days of your life.

As I was with Moses, so I will be with you:

I will never leave you nor forsake you.

Joshua 1:5

The difference between a great Christian life and any other kind lies in the quality of our religious concepts. We cannot think rightly of God until we begin to think of Him as always being there, and there first. Joshua had this to learn. He had been so long the servant of God's servant Moses, and had with such assurance received God's word at his mouth, that Moses and the God of Moses had become blended in his thinking, so blended that he could hardly separate the two thoughts; by association they always appeared together in his mind. Now Moses is dead, and lest the young Joshua be struck down with despair, God spoke to assure him, "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee." Moses was dead, but the God of Moses still lived.

Nothing had changed and nothing had been lost.

Nothing of God dies when a man of God dies.

For all things God is the great Antecedent. Because He is, we are and everything else is. "As I was—so I will be."

Only God could say this. Only the Eternal One could stand in the timeless I AM and say, "I was" and "I will be."

Thought

We cannot think rightly of God until we begin to think of Him as always being there, and there first.

Prayer

Let us think rightly of You, Lord, by realizing that You have always been there and that You were there first.

Prayer and Praise

*Prayer is a trade to be learned.
We must be apprentices and serve our time at it.
Painstaking care, much thought, practice and labour are required to be a skilful tradesman in praying.
Practice in this, as well as in all other trades, makes perfect.*
